They were the showroom models, so I am sure they were tested quite well before I got them. After 20 years, I still like them and have no complaints. I have this connected to 2 pair of Klipsch Epic CF3 speakers and a powered 10 inch Klipsch sub. I have only ever used 4 channels of the AV806x Comments To purchase AV806X spares or accessories, please contact the company via their website or visit an authorised retailer. You then will need to use the Carvers volume controls as the volume controls as the record output of the DVD system will be a fixed output set at 0db. It is not possible to set the unit up this way. Sorry. Dan Sometimes it pays to just ask someone else. Just wondering Carver Corp. Login to post Do you need a manual Although I am not sure on how to do this. I am using my Carver HR742 and I will be powering 2 Infinity SM155s. I. Who specs an amp at 3 ohms anyway. Your Carver might be just as effectively powerful. Bridging instructions are usually marked on the back. Typically, move a switch and connect the pairs positives to the speaker. It is not possible to set the unit up this way. Sorry. Dan Right now I'm pushing them with a single Carver M100T 100 wpc and it sounds as good without being dangerous. Look into getting a NAD, ADCOM or CARVER amplifier. I prefer CARVER myself. I am running a CARVER M500T251 wpc on my 901s and they sound incredible. I wanted to bridge these to refine amp power, increase channels. It is still possible to bridge the amplifier by taking one of the input signals, branching it out with a Y cable, and inverting the phase of the signal by 180 degrees. <http://classicalgardenornaments.com/uplds/boss-rbf-10-manual.xml>

This can be done with an inverting operational amplifier circuit and you may be able to find a device that does such. If you feed an inverted and non inverted signal into each of the inputs, you should be able to use both of the positive terminals on the amplifier and have a bridged amplifier. You still must remember that impedance loads will change and if your speakers are 4 ohms or less, I do not recommend this. Hope this helps. If the amplifier is capable of being bridged with another amp, the owners manual will explain how to do it. Let me know if you have any other questions. Answer questions, earn points and help others. It may not display this or other websites correctly. You should upgrade or use an alternative browser. It makes 133 wpc x 6 and 360 wpc x 3 in bridged mode. Anyone have the owner and service manuals Did a little more testing and found two bad channels. Both have good fuses and are showing bias current. Lucky the fuses are not blown, they are the same hard to find half size fuses Bob used in PLs. Oh well, four channels is not bad considering how cheap it was. It then did music duty last night and never missed a beat In fact, it is understressed in this configuration. I'll have something to enjoy while I look at the two bad channels. Yes Only problem I've ever had is a sticky power switch and one RCA terminal coming loose. I have 350 into it already is it worth a 650 complete rebuild I am really looking for the amp to keep as I have been testing a few options for HT and Stereo. What say ye I am really looking for the amp to keep as I have been testing a few options for HT and Stereo. What say ye Click to expand. I'm trying 4ohms in a bridged config and I'm getting a lot of heat! Please choose a different delivery location. Our payment security system encrypts your information during transmission. This wellmade, 45lb amp delivers 6 x 133 watts into 8 ohms. Additionally, this power amp may be configured for bridged channels 3x 360 watts. I used it in my home theater for roughly 10 years. Since then, it has been kept boxed in my fully climate controlled storage unit. Ive decided its finally time to let someone else enjoy it. Just prior to this listing, I tested the amp and confirmed that all 6 channels are working beautifully. Cosmetically, the unit is in excellent condition, as the pictures show. The amp will be shipped fully insured via UPS Ground, along with the Owners Manual, in the manufacturers original shipping box. You are the light of the world. Discuss your amps, receivers and control amplifiers here. As far as I can tell, the amp is bridged in two channel mode. The right three channels makes the right channel and here is where one of the relays is sluggish and then cycles randomly.

There is a Bias TP and trimmer but no DC trimmer DC Servo. DC doesnt seem to be an issue although I will have to remeasure to be sure. Is there anything EASY that I am missing. Anything more complicated will likely result in a visit to my friendly neighborhood tech. Add them in one at a time until you find the bad guy. Then, compare a good channel to the bad. Add them in one at a time until you find the bad guy. Then, compare a good channel to the bad. The last three take longer. One has a buzzing relay. Another relay cycles randomly. Ill shall return. Maybe moving the power wires around worked the solder joints getting rid of something intermittent. Thats a good guess considering how thin the PCBs are and the meager solder usage in the joints. I saw the same crap inside the Carver Receiver. It seems stable, the heat sinks are just above room temperature. A solid all around THX amplifier. It doesnt have a remote trigger but that isnt a problem if you have a line conditioner with switchable outlets. I love mine. It gets good reviews from its owners. If I didnt have the Acurus, the Carver would definately be on my list. BUT if you can find an 806x buy it. Having heard both I believe it is a better amp. Much smoother and warmer sounding if you like warm. You also get an extra channel of amplification for a 6.1 setup, and you can bridge each of the 6 channels for a maximum of 3 channels at 360 watts.

If you run each channel seperately, I believe it puts out an underrated 135 watts per channel The 806x is home THX certified as well. Cheers Andrew B. I recently purchased an Aragon amp to power my fronts. Yes, the Aragon is better but its also MUCH, MUCH more expensive. Compared to the Aragon, the Carver has a bit less air, a bit less detail and noticeably less low end muscle. However, if you have a subwoofer, that attenuated low end isnt going to be an issue. The Carver is still in my system powering my four surrounds and doing an excellent job of it. I think its a solid, honest performer. Scott F PS I am looking at upgrading to 6.1 system! suggestions welcome! I got one on ebay a couple of months back and I use it with my Onkyo 797. I love it! Very neutral and detailed. Ive had mine for over 2 years and its still going strong. Great sounding amp! I have since added another

Carver amp A400X if that is any incling on how much I like their amps.I have 2 Carver AV806x amps in my Home Theater system. The sound is very warm and smooth. Dialogue even seems to be improved over my previous Denon amps POA2400. I feel pretty comfortable purchasing this amp. I will be mating it with a new Outlaw 950 that should be arriving tomorrow. I have to say though, that it is seems to be a large amp, not tall, but wide and deep. I measured my rack, and found that it will certainly be hanging over the edge. Oh well, Im in it for the sound, right The only problem with this amp is that the seller does not have the owners manual with it. Does anyone know where I might be able to find an online copy. Seems like a lot for a simple owners manual. Scott There isnt much to tell about actually. The only adjustable items on the 705x are the trim pots over each channel output and, if the amp if going to perform to THX specs, those should be wide open at all times. Ive personally never had them at any other setting.

Some use them to fine tune channel balance, but I think youll prefer to do that at the Outlaw 950. By the way, I really like the Outlaw 950! Glad you like the 950. I actually just got mine about 1 hour ago. Its horrible because I dont have the amp yet. Im getting the shakes!!!! The only thing about the Outlaw so far that I have noticed is the build quality. I know they cut corners to give more bang for the buck, but I was expecting the knob and buttons to be a little firmer. I think someone should start a business making aftermarket hopup parts. Scott Great sounding amp! any other owners notice this amp never gets hot or overheats no matter how loud you play it.No matter how much you pound it, it will not strain nor heat up. Great amp for the money! It isnt very detailed and its only 6 or 7 pages long max. Youre not missing out on anything. The most important subjects are the channel gains and the channel steering feature. It takes available power from the other channels to support the most heavily used channels, i.e. the center and fronts. Any other questions were all here for you. I was considering going separates but opted for a flagship receiver. The Carver was used with sony strv555es and was beautiful. Heres the secrets review A great choice ESPECIALLY for the money. Marc. I bought a few new to me components that Im going to enjoy for now, and am going to let a few go. This Pioneer SX950 is in great shape. Its not perfect, but is one of the better ones that Ive seen. Everyone on epage is asking a war price. Can send more pictures to any serious buyers. I have a Carver AV 806x in excellent condition, even have the original owners manual. Ive owned it since new, although Sunburnwilly had it for a year or two before I reacquired it.

My son moved out and am making his room a listening room and this would go beautifully with my PL 530 turntable.The Carver is a real powerhouse and can produce 360 x 3 if bridged, 133 x 6 otherwise. If I get it gone Ill get up with you.I hate to let it just sit here looking good, knowing that it wants to be heard. Been tinkering with bookshelf speakers trying to find the smallest ones with the biggest sound. Since Im looking for a Luxman R117, I would maybe trade it for one theyre going for about the same price as what Im selling the Pioneer.I bought a few new to me components that Im going to enjoy for now, and am going to let a few go.
